Chipnet3 System

Cadbury's Ireland Dublin has been a valued customer of EMOS-Infineer for over 20 Years using Emos-Infineer Chipnet3 Cashless Catering System. With a population of around 1,500 staff the EMOS-Infineer system was chosen for various benefits that it will bring:

- Queue times being reduced during peak times
- Remove the use of Cash improving hygiene in areas where chocolate is manufactured.
- As service levels improve and the number of pupils using the cafeteria increases, catering and vending revenues also increase substantially

Cadbury's existing catering was controlled by cash payments. Using cash at the tills and vending slows up the canteen process and makes it difficult to get all staff through the canteen in the allotted lunch time. What slows up the process is the till operatives having to find the correct change. With access cards there is no need for change as the money is credited from their account.

Each user of the ChipNet3 system has a personalized smartcard. The chip on the smartcard carries a cash value and when purchases are made the cost is deducted from the value on the card. The card also carries the cardholder's personal permissions profile.

All cards set up within the Emos-Infineer system can have a maximum of two on-card purses. It is often easier to think of these purses as pockets holding separate amounts of money. The administrator may wish to restrict where and when each purse can be spent by selecting certain applications and days of the week. An expiry date can also be set for the card.

Cadbury currently use the EMOS-Infineer Smartcard in all buildings within their complex. EMOS-Infineer has fitted its vending readers to over 20 vending machines. Cadbury uses the EMOS-Infineer touch screen tills in their Restaurant for staff and visitors. They also use the Smartcards in the staff shop where staff can purchase discounted chocolate. Staff can top-up their accounts using Note and coin Revaluation machines located throughout the site

Working with our Partner Baxterstorey to provide a faster hygienic service to all staff at Cadbury's and fully networked system in place BaxterStorey have access to full reporting suite.
